

DIVORCE - THE NEW REASON TO PARTY?

PASH Says There's Nothing Like A Bit Of Girly Bonding, Sexy Fun And Adventure to Boost Morale And Self-Esteem

Cheers girls – I'm officially divorced and moving on to new "PASHionate Adventures"!

Many divorced or separated women in their thirties and forties feel too young to be on the shelf. And after years of a failing relationship, it's little wonder some women lose confidence to "get back out there" straight away. PASH thinks it may have the answer: PASH Divorce Parties – because there's nothing like a bit of girly bonding, sexy fun and adventure to boost morale and self-esteem.

PASH (www.pashparties.com.au) regularly hosts parties for women all across the country, selling fabulous, sensual products from sexy underwear, beauty treatments, saucy games, bedroom accessories and love toys...the ultimate in indulgence and fun.

PASH aims to give women the opportunity to find out about sensual products, pick up some great hints and tips on all things sexy and sensual.

The parties are also a great forum for friends to talk about relationship issues, their sex life, swap advice and suggestions and hear about ways to spice up their love life and feel great about themselves as women.

Jodie, a 39 year old mother of two and new divorcee from Sydney NSW said: "I've just got divorced and it's been a bit of a bumpy ride. I'm not ready to go out dating just yet, but the PASH Divorce Party seemed a great idea to have some fun with the girls, try out and learn about some great sexy and sensual ideas, boost my self esteem and take the first steps to getting back my confidence before dating again."

Jo Karabin, founder of PASH explains:

"Women of all ages and in all stages of relationships need to feel confident and sexy. But women who've been through the trauma of a separation or divorce and find themselves single again after many years, have often lost their sense of attractiveness and their self-confidence has often taken a real down turn.

"PASH parties allow women to get together, bolster each other's confidence, swap ideas and anecdotes and have the confidence to try out sexy lingerie, accessories and toys in a private, secure and non threatening environment."

Melinda Poole, founder of www.i-dont.com.au, Australia's separation and divorce directory said: "It's clear that many women (and men) want to have another special relationship but really need to relearn the ropes to a certain extent! Not everyone wants to go straight back out there and date or start partying like a 20 year old! This is where parties like PASH Parties are great for supporting women on the road to getting back their confidence before dating again."

For the ultimate in sexy girly fun, PASH also co-hosts parties with Polestars Australia: PASHalicious Polestars parties combine a fabulous PASH Party followed by pole dancing lesson and operate from venues in Melbourne, Sydney, Gold Coast, Sunshine Coast and Brisbane. In Sydney the girls will even bring the party to your home!

www.pashparties.com.au 1800 00 PASH (7274)
www.i-dont.com.au
www.polestars.com.au

ENDS

Media Info: Sophie Cross sophie@sophiecpr.com or call 0421 996810